Chapter 5: Summary

Summary

We're making progress with our program. It can now open a player file, read its records into a list, and display the first player on the screen. That's quite a lot!

We still want to move through the player list in the Player View, we have another view to build, and we want to be able to alternate between the views. But that's more than we can accomplish in one lesson, so we'll leave that part of the project, as well as the discussion of how to use other collection types, for next time.

I'll see you then.
